

I am disappointed to see that the FCC is considering ending net neutrality. I encourage the FCC to change course and keep the internet free and open to all. Internet providers should not be able to influence the speed at which individual web pages load or stream data. This will cripple the internet as we know it.

Sincerely yours,
Michael Whalen